STATE POLICE TO AID CAMPAIGN

-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

By I. M. WISE

NOT SO GOOD

Whether the recent discovery of taking the morning-after headache out of whisky and other potent fluids with strong alcoholic content is open to debate. Doubtless the man who makes a habit of indulging in the stuff that "stingeth like a serpent and biteth like an adder" will welcome it as a boon. However many are deterred from over-indulgence by fear of the after-effects but with that fear removed the cause of temperance and sobriety is not likely to gain much headway. ?

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

It doesn't seem possible that there should be any division of sentiment on the subject of Communism, yet in the legislature we find two groups — one advocating the enactment of measures that would provide for the dismissal of any teacher who advocated the overthrow of our government by force, and prosecution on a charge of felony. The bills also provide that no organization preaching the overthrow of the government could use any school house in the state for meetings and would prohibit the display of a red flag as a symbol of revolution. A third bill would have the sheriffs of the various counties report to the State bureau of criminal identification on known Communists.

That our schools should need such a purging is incredible and a reflection on the vigilance we should have exercised in not keeping this institution free from this deadly taint. Yet we have a number of legislators who are bitterly opposing the measures. I wonder if these men really know what they are doing or are crack-brained?

Defense Hits State Change Of Theories

SAN JOSE, April 25—UP— Rebuttal testimony in the trial of David Lamson on charges of murdering his wife today threatened to extend the bitterly fought case to new and unexpected lengths.

Edwin V. McKenzie, chief defense attorney, charged that the State was changing its theories of how Mrs. Lamson met her death "at the last moment", injecting new statements and evidence in the final phase of its case.

"If you permit such testimony, the defense will be trapped," McKenzie said. "Our finances are nearly exhausted and we will not be able to obtain expert witnesses to refute the changing theories."

A supplementary project in Alameda county, providing continuation of research into the history of the old mining town of Columbia, will furnish employment for 37 additional workers.

In Humboldt county, 42 laborers will be employed for improvements of Sequoia park, Eureka, at an estimated cost of $4,892.

Twenty persons will be employed in Los Angeles to continue survey work on the Cadastral Map, city of Alhambra.

Pat Howard, who resides in the San Pablo dam area, was treated at Richmond Cottage Hospital early this morning for bites suffered on both legs when he was attacked by two dogs on the dam road. Howard reported that he had run out of gasoline while driving home and was walking back to a service station when the dogs bit him. A passing motorist brought him to the hospital.

STATEHOUSE AT SALEM IS IN FLAMES

SALEM, Ore., April 25—UP — Oregon's central capital building crumpled in flames tonight, valuable records, offices and equipment feeding the fire that started in the basement at 6:45 P.M., and surged to the roof via the elevator shafts.

The massive copper dome added to the 59-year old structure in 1893 collapsed at 8:05 P.M.

Thousands of persons jammed the streets and watched the blue tinted flames from the dome spurt toward the sky.

Combined fire departments of Salem, Silverton and Mount Angel poured impotent streams of water on the inferno.

START OF FIRE MYSTERY

No one knew what started the fire, first flames were seen in the basement and supply rooms. They spread through crooked corridors, choked with filing cabinets, lapped at the low ceilings and reached the main elevator shafts.

FLAMES SPREAD RAPIDLY

In an instant the fire had burst through the roof. It spread from there into the left wing where the liquor control offices are located. Then it reached the east wing, and reached downward into the senate chamber on the second floor, where paintings of all Oregon governors hang.

PAINTINGS ARE SAVED

A few valuable paintings were removed from the first floor where the long halls are lined with cases containing relics of early Oregon pioneer days and other valuable and historical exhibits.

The structure was completed in 1876 at a cost of $324,000.

Fifth Annual Flower Show Is Concluded

The fifth annual spring flower show of the Richmond Garden Club ended last evening with the largest crowd of the two-day show in attendance. The affair, held at 1512 Macdonald avenue, proved to be one of the most successful shows ever held by the local organization.

Hundreds of exhibitors took part in this event, which is proving each year to be an outstanding community project.

Mrs. J. W. Smiley, the chairman of the affair and members of the committee in charge yesterday united in thanking residents of the city, business firms and others for the fine cooperation extended to the club to make the project a success.

Mrs. M. E. Salmi was especially praised by the committee for her work. Mrs. Salmi had charge of floor arrangements and it was under her direction that the tasteful layout was arranged.

Several outstanding exhibits at the show won high praise from everyone who attended. Among these exhibits was a Garden Club project of an "outdoor living room" arranged under the direction of Mrs Harry Marland and the club members. This delightful corner of the show floor drew much attention from the spectators.

Enthusiastic over the response of the public to this show, members of the Garden Club are making plans for the 1936 show, which they believe will be the biggest ever held in the city.

Borah Is Boomed For President

SEATTLE, April 25—UP— Admirers of Idaho's veteran Republican senator today organized what they believed was the first "Borah for President" club in the nation.

Lewis E. McGuire was elected president. Headquarters were established downtown and promotion of Senator Borah for the 1936 election will start soon.

Now and Then

IS MAE WEST married, or isn't she? That seems to be the paramount question today. Resurrection of an old marriage license in Milwaukee shows that a Mae West and Frank Wallace were married in 1911. Mae denies it, saying she was too young. Anyway, on the right is the actress in 1914 when she was a burlesque queen. At the left is Mae in all her regal splendor today. Now, is Mae West married, or isn't she? We give up.

Board Quits Mediations In Walkout

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25—UP —The tense Pacific coast tanker strike, now six weeks old, reached its most serious climax tonight when the federal mediation board said peace was impossible and said it was withdrawing from the dispute.

"The board believes it impossible to bring together the tanker operators and their striking employes" said the board in a statement signed by the chairman, Albert Rosenshine San Francisco attorney. "Under the circumstances there is nothing further the board can do unless it receives word from Washington."

Tomorrow is the deadline set by the tanker operators for their striking employes to return to work or be barred from service.

Many of the tankers already are being operated by strikbreakers.

Gold Panning Brings Death Of Aged Miner

MARIPOSA, April 25—UP—Tom Steinburg, 45, was charged with the murder of John Catlett, 55, in a gold panner's quarrel over rights in a mother lode stream near here today.

Sheriff John J. Castagnetta said Stenburg admitted he shot Catlett after the latter had threatened him with a pick. Both men are members of the small army of prospectors which has moved into the hills to pan the streams.

Catlett is survived by two brothers, G. T. Catlett, Los Angeles, and U. S. Catlett, San Francisco, and a sister, Mrs. M. Green, San Mateo.

Strom Hurt In Accident, Driver Held

Two persons were jailed by Richmond police last evening following an automobile accident in which J. P. Strom, well known local resident was slightly injured.

John Steventon, of 1806 Bancroft Way, Berkeley and Geraldine Lathrop, 439 Thirty-seventh street, Oakland, were jailed on charges of intoxication. Possible drunk driving may be filed against either Steventon or the Lathrop woman this morning by Strom.

According to police reports, Strom was walking across Tenth street at the intersection of Macdonald avenue when the car, believed to have been driven by Steventon, struck him. Strom was not badly injured. He was treated by a doctor for cuts and bruises and returned to his home.

When officers arrived at the scene they found the pair in the car allegedly drunk. They were taken to police headquarters and booked in the city jail.

Queen Snatching At Stanford Tonight

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 25—UP—The annual kidnaping of the queen of tomorrow night's university masque ball was confidently awaited by the campus today, although President Ray Lyman Wilbur said he would have the G-Men on the "snatchers."

Abduction of the queen, who is Miss Nancy Pettigrew this year, is something of an annual custom by which the university officials number their gray hairs.

President Wilbur warned that the kidnapers would be turned over to the department of justice and the university would not lift a finger.

MOTHER OF YOUTH SEES KILLER FLEE

HOLLYWOOD, April 25 — UP—Two women and two men were sought by police tonight in the mysterious slaying of Paul Wharton, wealthy film studio designer and former protege of Aimee Semple McPherson.

Police have an accurate description of a man who leaped through the window a few minutes after the shooting, landed in shrubbery 20 feet below and fled in a coupe.

SHOOTING PROBED

Meanwhile police sought to patch together circumstances surrounding the shooting, which had been preceded by a dinner party in Wharton's studio, attended by two other young men, one of whom was recognized.

Mrs. Wharton, wealthy and eccentric widow, who adopted Wharton five years ago when he was designer for Mrs. McPherson at Angelus temple, said Wharton had been in his apartment all afternoon with two young women, apparently assistants in his design work.

RECOGNIZES VOICE

She said later the two men entered, and she recognized one by

Union Support To Strike Of Sailors Seen

SEATTLE April 25—UP— The maritime federation of the Pacific stand squarely behind seamen in their walkout from west coast tankers, it was affirmed tonight by Harry Lundberg, six foot Norwegian sailor who a few hours before was elected the federation's president.

In his first interview, the president made plain he is one of the "left wing" in maritime affairs, with his ears opened to suggestions from Harry Bridges, fiery San Francisco longshoreman leader.

"We stand on the federations approval of the tanker strike," said Lundberg. "We will give our moral support until other offerts to bring settlement fails, then the executive committee will decide if it shall call a general strike vote."

To Marry

LYLE TALBOT, motion picture star, and pretty Peggy Watters, who, rumor has it, will soon step off together on the seas of matrimony.

5 Inquests Conducted In Deaths Here

Two other verdicts of deaths from natural causes were returned in the deaths of Roy Patterson, a member of the Richmond Fire Department, who dropped dead some time ago, and in the case of Mrs. Bena Jensen of Kensington Park.

The jury returned a verdict of suicide in the case of Jesse P. Klein local automotive worker, who died from inhaling deadly gasses from his motor car. He was found sitting in his parker car on the tank farm hill highway by state police officers several weeks ago.

A verdict of accidental death was brought in by the jury in the death of Donald Kroge of Rodeo, a small child who died from burns when he fell into a pan of scalding water.

Traffic Council To Establish School For Law Violators

As a result of the action taken at the meeting of the Richmond Traffic Safey Council held last evening, a traffic school, such as has been in successful operation in other cities, will become a reality in Richmond within the next week

TRAFFIC SCHOOL

Dr. George A. Boehmer, president of the council announced the make-up of traffic school committee as State Traffic Inspector Fred A. Leber (chairman), Chief of Police E. L. Jones, Police Officer Allen Cundy, Police Inspector Harry Donnelly, and Herbert L. Hunn, principal of the Longfellow Junior high school.

The school for traffic violators will be operated under the direction of this committee, and instructors for the school will soon be announced.

COURTS TO CO-OPERATE

Police Judge C. A. Odell, Justice of the Peace John Moore and other Justices in surrounding townships, welcome the organization of the school, and undoubtedly many who violate the law through ignorance, and others nabbed for motor vehicle act infractions, who are unable to pay their fines, will have to attend the traffic school.

It is believed by the officers of the safety council, that by compelling violators to attend the school, study the motor vehicle act, and be instructed in the safe method of driving, and the proper way to make signals, that accidents in the city will decrease very [illegible].

TRAFFIC SAFETY CLASS

It was also decided to sponsor the tentative formation of safety classes in the high school and the two junior high schools, co-operating with Superintendent of School W. T. Helms, and the members of the grammar and high school teachers. Instructors would be supplied to teach the students concerning the safe operation of automobiles.

BARBARA ASKS HER FATHER TO COME TO RENO

RENO, Nov. April 25 — UP — Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani needs the comforting presence of her father, Franklyn Hutton, New York broker, during her residence here while awaiting to divorce Prince Alexis Mdivani, it was learned tonight.

Consequently the somewhat homesick heiress to the Woolworth five and ten millions sent her step-mother east for her father.

Mrs. Hutton who slipped out of Reno quietly late last Tuesday arrived in Chicago this morning en route to New York. There she will meet Hutton and both will return here to be with Barbara until she obtains her divorce probably May 13.

Just when Hutton would arrive here was not learned.

The princess who is seeking the divorce because Alexis paid too much attention to his polo ponies and didn't show sufficient interest in her is still here at the home of George Thatcher, her principal counsel.

She has no intentions of abandoning the divorce action and return to New York, said William Woodburn, Thatcher's law partner.

"I am not leaving Reno," was Barbara's cryptic comment to a report she had abandoned her divorce plans.

The night before Mrs. Hutton's departure, it was learned, she and a friend visited a local night club, tipped the employes $20 each to close the place to the public and then played roulette. It was not learned whether Mrs. Hutton won or lost.

Large Crowd In Attendance At Kennel Club

With an unusually large crowd in attendance for the Bathing Beauty Revue El Cerrito Kennel club witnessed a great parade of favorites in the greyhound races last night.

No less than six favorites scored handily in the eleven races.

King's Messenger carried the good news for option buyers in the eighth race, making good a $50.40 double option with Master Blue, when he coasted home at 8 to 5, one of the shortest prices of the evening. King's Messenger broke cleanly and had so much a command on the backstretch that it was only superb stamina that pulled W. F. McHugh's Another Aristocrat within seven lengths of first place.

One of the surprises was furnished in the sixth race when Captain Hollister, batted down to 3 to 2 at the windows, and racing from the favored No. 1 hole, finished third, with Master Blue and Mission Maiden ahead. Captain Hollister looked like a sure thing, but raced dumbly on the first turn and was shut off early.

Although it was not indicated just what steps would be taken if broadcasting companies went forward with plans to broadcast the games, a telegraph vote of the eight coast owners showed unanimous opposition to the plan.

PAA OFFICIALS DEFY RULES IN CARDINAL MEET

STANFORD, University, April 25—UP—In defiance of A. A. U. rules, officials of the Pacific Athletic Association today planned to hold the annual P. A. A. track meet here Saturday over regular distances rather than under the metric system.

Both R. L. (Dink) Templeton, Stanford coach, and Brutus Hamilton, University of California mentor, have opposed the metric system of measurement and expressed preference of the use of the yards system.

As the Pacific Association is a part of the A. A. U. organization, any records made in the meet will not be recognized if the metric measurement is not used.

Last minute entries today, many of them from Sacramento and San Mateo Junior colleges, brought the total entry list for the meet to more than 200.

Although the University of California will not enter a full team, several leading California competitors will be present for the meet. Tom Moore, speedy low hurdler, Bob Heavey, sophomore miler and John Dowdakin, freshman sprinter are among the Bears who will compete.

Dowdakin, who covered the 220 yard distance in 21.7 seconds this season, is expected to be one of the leading dash men of the coast next season.

With the U. S. C. dual meet only a week away, Templeton plans to use the P. A. A. meet as a "warm-up" for the Trojan clash, and has entered his full team. Humbert Smith high jumper who has been bothered by a sprained ankle, will be the only Stanford varsity man not competing.

To Participate In Boston Track Meet

BERKELEY, April 25—UP—University of California's participation in the I. C. A. A. A. A. track meet at Boston, May 25, was assured today as it was announced the Associated Students Executive committee had appropriated $2,500 to defray expenses on the eastern trip.

Coach Brutus Hamilton plans to enter 12 athletes in the intercollegiate track classic. With a team of five men, the Bears finished in third place last year.

Cardinal Stars

ACCORDING to pre-meet dope, John Mottram, left and Warren Dixon were favored to win the javelin throw and the mile run for Stanford at Saturday's field meet in Berkeley. Mottram was only able to eke out a scant second place in the javelin event when Fitzgerald of U. C. broke a record with a 211 foot hurl. Dixon however, lived up to expectations and won a gruelling mile battle.

DUTCH WHIST HELD AT MEMORIAL HALL

Meandering around El Cerrito Wednesday evening found a whist party at Memorial Hall run by the charming Mrs. Queenie Schwake, assisted by the venerable Mrs. Lucy Redding.

This party was put on by the child welfare division of the Ladies Auxiliary to the American Legion Took a seat at a table where were three whist players, all better than I, to-wit: Florence Evans, Ann Eldridge and August Gatto. Played five hands of whist of the Dutch variety, the kind that is a lot of fun, and winning on those five was promoted and did the same thing over at various other tables with various other players, and thought several thoughts, and wished I were beautiful like Mrs. R. R. Cheek, or vivacious like Mrs. Fred Young, or good natured like Mrs. F. M. Gilbert, or a good whist player like Mrs Otto Palmberg, or dignified like Mrs. S. C. Masterson, or interesting like Mrs. McAuley, or petite like Mrs. Seaman, or something nice like almost any body, but alas I found it vain to wish these things, so just enjoyed myself playing Dutch whist. And finally Mrs. Schwake and Mrs. Blake McNeil and others who could add, did a lot of figuring and then awarded prizes as follows: Mabelle Cornell, M. A. Young, Mrs. Whistler, W. P. Rumfelt, Winifred Jackson, Jane McGehe, William Lockhart Mrs. F. M. Gilbert, Mrs. George F. Scott, Mrs. R. Molson and G. McAuley.

After this ceremony was duly performed everyone adjourned to the room below, the one from which came the delectable aroma of fragrant coffee, and there partook bountifully of homemade cake and the aforementioned fragrant coffee. And we told the assembled multitude that we baked the cakes, but few or none believed us, and it was just as well, because as a matter of fact we did not bake them. We only ate them Note to Mrs. Schwake: You must come over and see us sometime.

PUP CAFE WHIST PROVES SUCCESS

Strapping on our tin ear yesterday we went scouting around to listen to whatever was interesting. And heard that the whist at the Pup Cafe on Wednesday was a successful one and that Mr. Joe Brazil got first prize. (Leave it to the men to carry off first prize, the selfish things) and that the other lucky players were Clarice McAuley, Alice Lockhart, Clare Schmidt, and Mrs. Masterson.

FIREMAN PLANNING FOR COMING PARTY

Went to city hall and finding Fire Chief Burnett unarmed and defenseless held him up and extracted the following bit of news: The firemen will hold their regular end-of-the-month party at city hall Saturday night. There will be 20 hands of whist, then dancing and refreshments. Dance committee: Vic Belfils, Glen Bullard and Don Bonini.

Also this: The El Cerrito firemen will hold their 6th annual ball on the evening of the fifteenth of June at East Shore Park. Every body is to come, and stay sober. Or as nearly so as may be. But come anyhow.

BIRTHDAY PARTY TO MRS. E. WINNINGHAM

And the merry little breezes whispered to us that Mrs. Earl Winningham had a birthday yesterday, and that several of her friends surprised her during the forenoon by inviting themselves to her home to stay for luncheon, accepting the invitation, and going there. They took with them a nice birthday cake and a gift. That's the kind of friends to have. Sort of a compensation for having to have the birthdays. We will tell you who the ladies are so that you can maybe cultivate them too: Mrs. H. P. Burpee, Mrs Frank Blackard, Mrs. Earl Tessneer, Mrs. W. E. Allen, Mr. Ed Hensen and Mrs. E. W. Shupp.

L. A. ATTORNEY IS VISITING IN E. C.

And since we can't be like Lewis A. Lapham who writes of shoes and ships and sealingwax for a San Francisco daily, but have to stick to El Cerrito doings, we will vary the party list a little by telling you that a brilliant Los Angeles attorney, Mr. Victor H. Wood, is here with his family visiting his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wood of 1733 Mendocino Street in the Annex. Mr. Wood is one of the attorneys on the famous Gosden case, and about that case he said to us . . . well, never mind.

MRS. ST. PIERRE TO BUILD NEW HOME

And by doing some original research work among the records at city hall yesterday we found that a permit had just been issued by Building Inspector A. A. Arensen to Mrs. St. Pierre to build a dwelling on Edwards Street in El Cerrito at an approximate cost of $3000. Contractor, A. W. Shaw. Others papers please copy. You will anyhow, so I had as well be polite.

WHIST AND DANCE AT HARDING SCHOOL

Don't forget that whist and dance to be given at Harding School Saturday night by the Berkeley Park Improvement Association. After the whist is over the dancing will begin. After the dancing is over the feeding will begin. Music will be by Harold Jacoby and several more of Berkeley Park's home talent.

Student Pilot Dies Instantly In Plane Crash

BEADERTON, Ore., April 25—UP A rented airplane plunged 600 feet into a farmyard today, killing Tom Gregory, Portland oil company employe who obtained his student pilot's license less than a month ago.

Gregory rented the plane from Watts airport to practice landings.

The Walter Brown family heard a crash 20 minutes later and found wreckage of the plane nosed three feet into the earth 15 feet from their dwelling. Gregory's neck was broken.

Swimming Team Is Touring East

America's greatest college swimming team, the powerful and undefeated "Wandering Raiders" of Golden Gate Junior College of San Francisco have officially closed their season and are now touring the middle-west and the east, swimming under the colors of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A.

The reason for [illegible] the junior college is the educational division of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A., and all of the men and women students are also members of the Y. M. C. A. So it is only natural that they represent the "Y" at the conclusion of the college season.

Two weeks ago, after returning from their record breaking spree at Santa Cruz where they broke three world's records, three National Intercollegiate records, and six Pacific Coast Intercollegiate records, they departed for the East

Gibb Funeral To Be Held Today

Funeral services will be held from the Bethany hall, East Twenty-third avenue, Oakland, this afternoon at 2 o'clock for the late Mrs. Elizabeth Gibb, pioneer local woman who died at her home, 522 Fortieth street, early this week. Interment will follow at the Sunset View cemetery.

Deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Anna Gilbert, of Tennessee. She was the widow of the late Edgar Gibb, for many years a local Santa Fe employee.

Unable To Pay Their Way Here, 3 End Lives

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25—UP Three men, for whom the frustration of existence had become too discouraging, killed themselves today.

Unemployed George Buchanan, 63, waited for Thursday to come so his wife Annie, who had found a job as a domestic, could visit him on his day off. Today she came home, found him dangling from a rope in a closet.

Sick, after active years as a writer, and a traveler, Frank Wood killed himself in a hotel.

Humiliated, Leo Schmidt, 35, shot himself in a vacant Oakland lot. To those who found him he whispered: "I didn't shoot myself." Police believed he died rather than face charges of stealing $9.20 from a beer tavern where he was employed.

Over $30,000 Gas Tax Given County

County Auditor A. N. Sullenger yesterday received from the state a check for $89,824.54, covering this county's share of first quarter gasoline tax allocations. The money goes into the road fund.

The total divided among the 58 counties was $2,881.925.

Law Is Ignorant Of Highway Law

The law of the highway, especially in regard to the section making it illegal to drive a car with four in the front seat, was explained to J. D. Law, Richmond factory worker, when he was tagged over the week end by Traffic Officer George Cockerton.

Law, 34, resides at 540 Sixth street. He was cited to appear before Justice of the Peace Clifford L. Thomson of Walnut Creek on April 30, when he will receive a more formal introduction in "Highway Law."

HOLLYWOOD.—UP— Ian Keith lays claim to being one of Hollywood's literary heavyweights.

He says he's read Milton's "Paradise Lost," Spencer's "Faerie Queen," all of Lord Byron and Sir Walter Scott and, in fact, just about everything of importance any Englishman ever wrote. Which just about qualifies him for the reading championship—in Hollywood.

Keith didn't always want to be an actor. When he was going to high school, he tied his star to a career in English literature, via Harvard. But his father, a then wealthy manufacturer, went bankrupt, and Keith's plans went flooey. He couldn't go to college, so he did the next best thing. He bought a book. It was a history of English literature.

"After reading it through and studying it," he relates, "I copied the names of every author mentioned in it and the names of all his works.

"Then I started in on my systematic readings, beginning with 'Beowulf,' through Chaucer and Spenser and up to the present time. It was a silly thing to do, but I read everything chronologically.

"It took me eight years."

The actor attributes his fine diction to his reading habits. And his study of Shakespeare rewarded him with smash hits when he appeared in "Othello" and "Macbeth" on the stage. He thinks he's learned more about literature than had he gone to Harvard.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

WASHINGTON, April 25—Two years of close contact with people on relief have given some very definite ideas to Harry Hopkins' FERA workers regarding the growth of radicalism in this country.

Their conclusion is emphatically to the effect that radicalism has won an army of converts during the depression, that a large number of the 17 per cent of the population now on relief would rebel if funds were withdrawn.

This was confirmed in a recent meeting of FERA regional directors. Several stated that if relief were abolished in their district there would be revolution within a few weks.

This also is the private view of Harry Hopkins. And there is no question as to where his sympathies lie. Recently he said:

"Our work is a process of education, showing the indigent needy that they have a right to a decent susbsistence."

And at a recent conference of FERA leaders he added: "Unless you realize that this is a fight between the 'haves' and the 'have-nots,' you do not belong at FERA headquarters."

COLONEL ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt almost got a note at the recent Gridiron Club dinner that would have intrigued him considerably.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., was a guest at the dinner, and during the course of the evening asked a waiter to deliver a note to Maryland's tall, white-crested former Governor Albert C. Ritchie, who was seated some distance away.

The note read:

"Dear Governor: Sister Alice Mrs. Alice Longworth, is giving a little party for some friends after the dinner. She does this after every Gridiron dinner and would like very much to have you come."

Ritchie wrote the following reply:

"Dear Colonel: Please tell Alice I will be very glad to joint her after the dinner."

The waiter who had delivered "Young Teddy's" note had departed and Ritchie beckoned to another.

"Do you know Colonel Roosevelt?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Give him this note, please."

The waiter took the note and started to move away when Ritchie stopped him.

"You are sure you know Colonel Roosevelt?"

"Oh, yes, sir," was the confident reply. "He is the President."

REBELLING

The far-famed company unions with which certain industries hoped to break the back of Section 7-a, seem to be having trouble.

It develops that some of these made-to-order unions are refusing to "stay hitched" to the companies which mothered them. Some have even become more militant than the old-line organizations.

Chief among these is in the steel industry.

Although Mike Tighe, 77-year-old head of the A. F. of L. affiliated Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron and Tin Workers, has been busy expelling insurgents within his ranks for demanding aggressive action, company unionites have taken the offensive against the employers.

In one plant, government officials hear, the company union submitted a demand that its representative be given a place on the firm's board of directors.

Even more dramatic was the revolt of the company union established by the New York Telephone company. Employes were asked by the company to approve a disguised wage cut.

This the union flatly refused to do.

Moreover, it struck back with a counter proposal for an increase in pay. It claimed that undiminished dividends paid "stockholders throughout depression years at the expense of the employes" warranted such a raise.

ANTI-NUDE

Patriotism, preparedness and hot electioneering did not occupy all the time of D. A. R. delegates during their recent convention. A number of them took time off to reform the Capital's police department.

Before the Daughters came to town, a large moving picture theater within a few blocks of the White House had a snappy exhibit on display in its inner lobby. It consisted of a tricky arrangement by which a five-inch image of a living and talking nude woman was made to appear sitting in a fishbowl.

When the exhibit was first put on, an inspector from the police department consorship bureau looked it over. Though a little dubious he let it pass.

But the day after the Daughters arrived, police headquarters was deluged with indignant complaints.

The theater manager finally was notified he would have to do something about the matter. He did.

He clothed the blonde model in a strawberry-colored bathing suit.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, April 25— Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is taking in washing, as you might say. She turned the library and living room of the President's town house at 49 East 65th Street into furniture showrooms last week, and business wasn't bad at all.

Of course, it wasn't exactly necessary to keep any villainous landlord from foreclosing the mortgage on the old homestead. In a pinch the President might be able to raise a loan from one of the Washington alphabetical agencies. Mrs. Roosevelt's showrooms were really devoted to the semi-annual exhibition and sale of furniture, pewter and weaving made by the Wal-Kill factory at Hyde Park, which is the handicrafts enterprise sponsored by the President's wife in partnership with Representative Caroline O'Day Miss Marion Dickerman, principal of Todhunter school, and Miss Nancy Cook, designer and director of the shops.

The buyers on the first day included Mrs. La Guardia, wife of the Mayor; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Sr., mother of the Secretary of the Treasury; Miss Laura Franklin Delano, cousin of the President and about 300 others. Mrs. La Guardia became particularly excited because she found a pair of salt cellars that you actually could get salt and pepper into.

The close of business on the first day showed that $1,200 worth of merchandise had been bought — which should bring encouragement to the President if he loses his job.

IN THE LION'S DEN— Messrs. Aldrich and de Liagre, who produced the comedy "Petticoat Fever" are brave gentlemen indeed. New York radicals have theatrical organizations of their own, and are also particularly fond of lambasting the Broadway stage for its conservative outlook.

Messrs. Aldrich and de Liagre, however, decided to brave their wrath by going right out and inserting an advertisement of their play in the Daily Worker, which is the Communists' official newspaper. Their ad read:

"Come and see the capitalistic theater in its final stage of decay! An utterly trivial comedy, full of rank bourgeois, ideology, a superficial attempt to escape from reality, welcomed by the kind of sleek audiences who look only for frivolity, but it is all hilariously funny".

To date the box office results have already paid for the cost of the ad. Even radicals can be outwitted.

SEASON'S LAMENT—The springtime brings its own share of sad news. Mayor La Guardia recently banned hurdy-gurdies from the streets, but it turns out that even the ban was unnecessary.

The sad news is that hurdy-gurdies are disappearing from the town of their own accord, without benefit of official invitation. Edward Molinari, the last of the line of hand-organ makers, despairing reported out in his Brooklyn shop the other day that he hasn't sold one instrument in seven years. Even second-hand organs have found not a single taker in the last two years, and only occasionally does one come in for repairs.

Various explanations are offered. Some say the autoholiles have changed street life in New York. Others think that radio competition has made the hurdy-gurdy superfluous.

Whatever the reason, the fact remains that a mournful emptiness has crept into the poetry of the city's outdoor life.

BRIDE BY LEGACY

By R. G. MONTGOMERY

© 1935 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Mary Dean is trapped by her uncle's will, which divides his fortune between her and her younger brother and sister, Jerry and Ann, only on condition that she marries Jarred Marsh, a young man from South America whom she has never seen until he arrives for the reading of the will. She agrees to marry him for the sake of Jerry and Ann, unaware that Jarred and Carmie De Loss, secretary in the Dean home, are confederates in a plot to get control of the money. Don Harvey, newspaper reporter, who is in love with Mary, suspects a plot and does some private snooping. When he is kidnaped aboard a freighter he is convinced that Jarred and Carmie have paid to get him out of the way. Meanwhile, preparations for the wedding are in full swing.

CHAPTER XXVI

ANN and Jerry arrived at five that evening. Ann rushed into Mary's arms.

"Sis, you are a fast worker!" She held Mary away from her and laughed. "Where is the groom? I'm dying to meet him! I warn you, I may try to cut you out!"

Jerry had stood back with dignity. He now advanced with a grin.

"Yes, produce him, sis," he said stooping to kiss Mary.

As Mary looked at her young brother and sister, she felt that she was more than repaid for the sacrifice she was making. They were both fine youngsters.

"You will like Jarred, both of you," she said. "I'll see where he is."

She hesitated a moment, then went to the library. She found Jarred sipping a whisky and soda He got up quickly.

"I hid out." He grinned. "Aunt Nettie was making a pack animal out of me."

"I want you to meet the kids," Mary said.

SHE led him into the living room. His eyes fastened on Ann and stayed there, taking in her slender, flowerlike beauty. Ann puckered her mouth into an arch smile and stepped forward.

"Ann, this is Jarred—and this, Jarred, is Jerry." Mary said eagerly. She wanted Jarred to like the kids. He was to be their guardian.

Jarred took both Ann's hands in his and smiled down into her upturned face. Then he turned and held out a hand to Jerry.

"So you are to be our guardian?" Ann said with dancing eyes. That much of the provisions of the will had been made known to her and Jerry.

"I am, and I shall be a stern one," Jarred said, with mock gravity.

They all laughed, and Mary felt better.

"I want to paint the town red, and you can take me around—I mean the night clubs and the dance places and all the bright lights." Ann said. "Mary hasn't let me see much of those. She thinks I'm too young."

"Now Ann," Mary cautioned.

"Oh, you can't keep him all to yourself. I like handsome men too!" Ann stepped close to Jarred and smiled up at him. Mary felt a little disturbed.

"I'LL take you places and we'll see things," Jarred promised. Jerry caught up his bag. "My old room waiting for me?" he asked.

"It's all ready," Mary said.

"Then I think I'll go up and shave."

He left the room.

"Are folks really wicked who go to night clubs?" Ann was asking archly

"Terribly wicked but then it's nice to be wicked once in a while" Jarred answered smiling.

"You'll just have to take me out before I go back to school. School is so slow and dull. It bores me" Ann slipped her arm through his "Come along —let's take a look at the garden"

Mary watched them uneasily as they strolled out. Ann was so young and so foolish.

Meanwhile Carmie De Loss had missed nothing from where she sat in the library, her ear cocked toward the half-open door. She knew Jarred all too well. A girl that appealed to him turned his head completely.

ANN and Jarred strolled across the garden. She perched on a seat in the arbor and smiled saucily up at him.

"Now you can begin being extra nice to me." she said. "I've been cooped up with nothing but girls for ages and I crave romance."

Jarred made a mock bow "You are an adorable person." he said

Ann giggled and propped her chin in her hands.

"Yes, yes, go on, Sir Jarred."

"I crave a kiss but am afraid to ask it," he said.

"How now!" Ann laughed She jumped up suddenly, and caught his hand. "I just have to see if Mitzi is still in the pond" she cried, and started dragging him along the path toward the fish pond.

"Did you learn all your charms at a girls' school?" Jarred asked.

She tossed her curly bobbed head. "You would ask a question like that! But if you promise not to tell on me to Mary. I'll tell you about my boy friends some time. I'm not an old-fashioned girl like your bride-to-be."

SHE stopped beside the fish pond.

"Why, Mitzi has grown a full inch!" she cried.

"Which one is Mitzi?" Jarred slipped an arm around her and bent over the pond's edge.

"The one with the white spots and big eyes." Ann giggled.

"I see." He turned her around. "So it's the bright lights you want?" He was in a reckless mood. What did Mary or Carmie matter, with this slender wisp of a girl so vital and alive before him?

"Sure." Ann answered.

"We might sneak off tonight. Mary and Aunt Nettie will be running around making us do things if we don't duck out."

"Let's." Ann said eagerly.

"About eight. I'll have my roadster at the side door. You can tell Mary you are sleepy and tired and are going to bed. Then you can slip out." Jarred was flushed and eager.

"But I never get run down that soon, and Mary knows it. Make it ten." Ann turned toward the house. "And now, there'll be trouble if I don't see Aunt Nettie right away."

"Ten it is," Jarred said, and followed her up the path.

NOTE THEIR VERDICT

CHECK FOR YOURSELF WHAT THIS "BEER JURY" FOUND

See if you don't agree this unique Brown Derby Beer matches pre-war Pilsner

GREATEST BEER of pre-war days was pungent, imported Pilsner.

That was the standard against which the "beer jury" rated modern beers. The beer drinking experience of this "jury" totals over 500 years.

Who are they? A trans-Pacific aviator, an old brewmaster, a retired judge, old-time newspaper reporters, the ex-steward of a famous hotel. They've known imported Pilsner 30 to 65 years.

What do they find? 11 out of 12 vote just one American beer really equal to pre-prohibition Pilsner. "No other brew today can touch it for Pilsner character." they agree. "The best beer outside of Pilsen." "The same clear, pungent taste."

The beer they chose in repeated, hidden-name tests was the West Coast's own Brown Derby!

Try this beer yourself. Actually Brown Derby is brewed the old, leisurely way, the costly way... from finest hops and malt specially chosen to give the genuine Pilsner taste.

Brewed with a water like those of the famous breweries at Munich and Pilsen.

Brown Derby costs no more than common beers. Try it.

Facts about the "beer jury"

10 modern American beers they judged. Just one unique brew got their 11 to 1 verdict, as a match for old-time Pilsner—and that was California's own Brown Derby.

Summer Roundup of Children for Health Examination Shows Gratifying Increase

IT IS DUE to the loyal members of Parent-Teacher Associations everywhere that their heroic efforts in connection with summer health campaigns should have wide recognition. "Summer Roundup" of the Children is a specific activity of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. It was designed as an interest in the health of pre-school children, but much auxiliary benefit to other children has resulted.

DR. CHRISMAN

Its specific aim is to provide that every child who is to enter school next fall shall have a thorough physical examination in order to tabulate any weakness or disability already existing, or to warn against a child's susceptibility to certain types of disease.

The program also includes immunization against contagious diseases. Completed figures are available only for the year of 1933, and this in itself is a fact for comment. Speaking for my own state, at the beginning of this current year, only one-fourth of our two hundred Health Districts had returned to the State Department of Health the necessary compiled reports. Thus many valuable figures from local groups are not made available and much effort falls short of fruition.

HOWEVER, no attention to the general health as applied through individuals can be considered wasted. It is pretty sure to do that individual some good. The completed statistics for 1933 report a registration of over six thousand school units for the project of a summer survey. Of these, more than half carried the project through, though not quite all of them met the National requirements.

These requirements include not only discovering defects in these prospective child students, but making some effort to remedy them. The survey included forty-five states and Alaska, and contacted approximately one hundred and sixty thousand children; more than half of these received professional examinations.

Of the many thousands of the children found who were in real need of medical and dental attention, many unfortunately did not get it. But the effort and skill spent in the survey are repaid many times by the thousands of children who were cared for, and by the fact that many thousands of others will be spared possible infection through the precautions that have been taken.

AMONG the many unfavorable health conditions discovered by the survey, and many of them had not been suspected previously, were infected tonsils and teeth, adenoids, inflamed ear drums, incipient lung trouble and heart disease, faulty posture due to malnutrition, and poor bone tissue, gland secretions that were under or above normal.

Many cases of hernia were detected which needed early treatment. Crooked feet, defects of speech, and poor vision were all made matters of record and many cases of repair will mean improved health and capacity for all concerned.

The most interesting items of the report were the comparative figures. About one out of three of all parent-teacher units enrolled for the campaign. An approximate one-third of all defects discovered were corrected. An additional ten thousand children outside the special group were brought in for examination, and one-fourth of their troubles were corrected. Another ten thousand received immunization against small pox and diphtheria.

The year showed an increase of three hundred "Roundups" over the previous year, nearly three thousand more children were examined than in 1932, and, best of all, some twenty-five hundred more parents attended the examinations.

Guide to Charm

BLEACHING GOOD PLAN FOR THOSE NATURALLY FAIR

By JACQUELINE HUNT

BLEACHING is usually regarded as a method of hair dyeing and the same general rules apply. You must know that you look well with blonde hair before you decide to bleach. Usually the girl who is loveliest with bleached locks, is the girl who was born fair-haired, but whose hair darkened as she grew older.

This type of girl generally has the fair coloring of the natural blonde. If you have such a coloring, you may feel confident that you will be even lovelier with the golden lights in your hair emphasized. Fortunately, due to the popularity of blonde hair, a good method of applying the bleaching agents has been worked out.

Old-time bleaching methods and the use of the so-called "white henna" caused the hair to become so dry that numerous hot oil treatments were required to restore even a measure of its former luster and texture.

MISS HUNT

The new method does a good job of bleaching and at the same time gives your hair a reconditioning treatment. You will need a bottle of mineral oil, a bottle of 17 volumn peroxide and some ammonia. Brush and comb your hair free from tangles and part it in the middle.

In the upper part of a double boiler, put one ounce of the mineral oil, one ounce of peroxide and from ten to fifteen drops of ammonia. Mix the ingredients thoroughly with an egg beater and heat over hot water until quite warm.

While the ingredients are heating, part your hair into inch sections, twiste each one and pin with a large hairpin. Cover one end of an orange stick with cotton, dip it into the bleaching liquid and apply to one small section of hair at a time. Continue until every strand of hair has had an equal amount of the liquid. You will do a better job of this if a friend helps you.

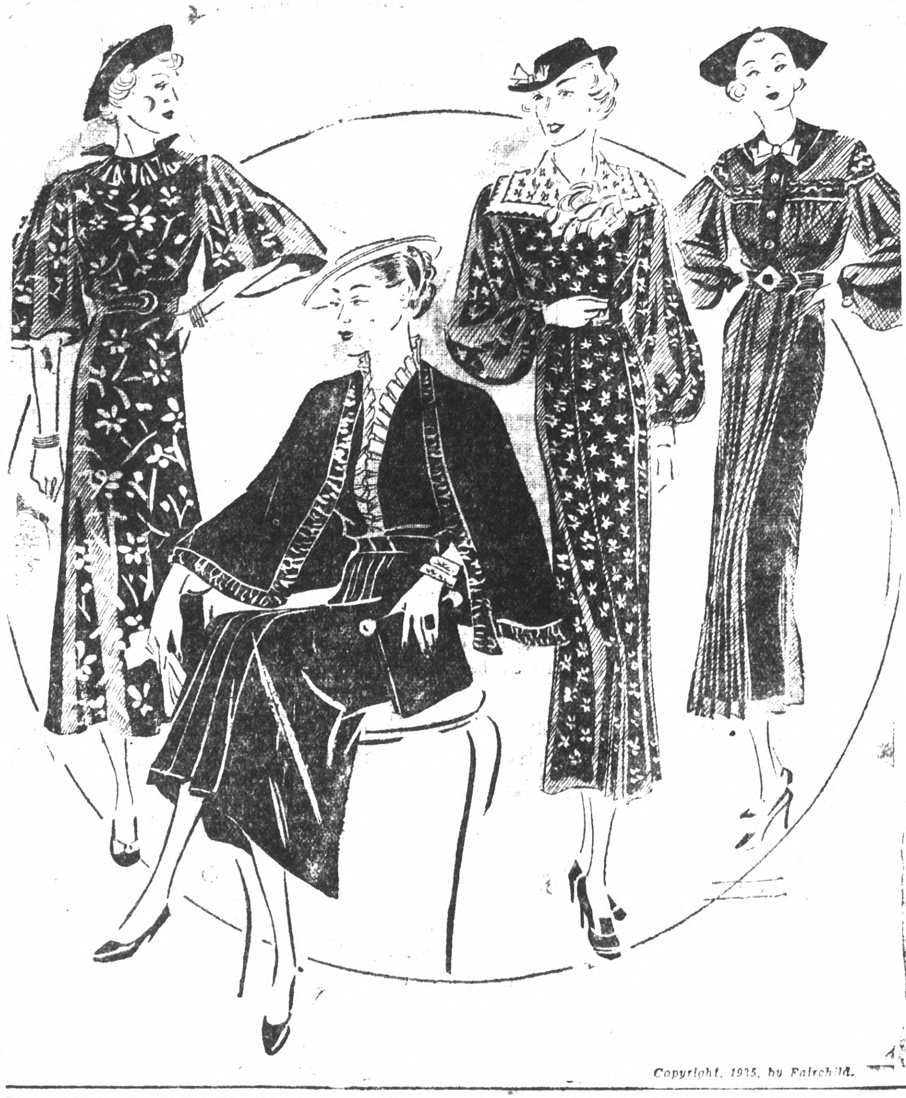
If you simply want highlights in your hair leave the bleach on about ten minutes. If you want your hair really blonde leave on the bleach for twenty to thirty minutes. Watch the clock. While you are waiting for the time to elapse apply pure mineral oil all over your scalp and down the strands of your hair.

When you think the bleach has been on long enough, shampoo your hair thoroughly with liquid castile soap and tepid water. Rinse thoroughly and dry by hand. Blonde hair should be fluffy so set loose waves and make neat little ringlets or soft sausage curls. Better not use a heavy brilliantine as it is apt to make your newly-fair hair appear streaked

The same liquid can be used for retouching the darker portions of hair that grow out.

Dressmaker Suit Features Style Shows; Dolman Sleeve and Bloused Back Seen

THE TREND TO FULNESS IN FRONT



Copyright, 1935, by Fairchild.

By IRENE VAIL

New York—No more comprehensive picture of current fashions can be painted than a sort of blanket description of the various fashion shows which shops have been tendering us. On the whole, suits dominated the more practical showings, not the classic tailleur, but the dressmaker suit leading.

The dolman sleeve and the bloused back were in evidence in the dressmaker type of suit and in dressier coats. Many coats were of the double-breasted type, showing broad revers and full sleeve treatment.

Jackets were fitted, often of print worn with a plain gown, or they were of the box styling. Capes were varied as to length and treatment, though, for the most part, detachable.

Broad belts of silver, gold or a contrasting color were often worn with collared, long-sleeved, floor-length gowns. Other accessory highlights were chamois hat and gloves, a color that could be worn by women of all ages.

Pastel shades in tweeds were impressive, and sportswear reflected the feminine influence by the predominance of pink and gray combined.

The decolletage with upstanding flange is new and flattering, also the one with turnover band.

Flower outlined necklines are perfect for spring and summer, including large flowers that practically cover the bosom and garlands in lei fashion.

Sketched today, the dress at the extreme left, developed in a daisy print, described as a pure dye silk, is done in geranium red, leaf green and white.

The seated figure wears a cape costume, in a heavy sheer fabric that has the look of wool, but isn't. The cape is treated with shirred bands for borders, and the bodice has a crisp detail.

A starred chiffon is chosen for the soft frock that has a collar of embroidered mousseline de soie making a flattering line at the throat.

Vaporous chiffon is selected for the dress at the right, fashioned on simple shirtwaist lines, with shirred fulness in the sleeves and bodice. Pleats provide fulness for the skirt.

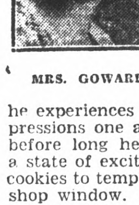
You and Your Child

SHOPPING TOUR PLANTS DESIRE IN GIRL'S MIND

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

MOTHER was angry and walked rapidly and with determination, dragging little Edith behind her. The child was tearful, but her tears were not quite the kind of heartbreak and resignation. This child was bawling loudly and in a demanding way. From the tone of her voice, she seemed to be reproaching her mother for being unjust to her.

A neighbor stopped the pair. "What is she crying about?" she asked the mother. "Because I slapped her, I guess. But that's not the whole story." The mother's face reddened. "This is the last time I'll ever take her shopping or anywhere. She wants everything she sees, and torments me to buy her this and that." She gave the child's hand a jerk. "Stop crying!" She spoke these two words with such ferocity, that the child became silent immediately. Even the neighbor looked frightened as she hurried away.



MRS. GOWARD

It is natural for a child to crave anything which attracts his attention. When you take him away from home to a busy shopping avenue he experiences so many new impressions one after another that before long he is worked up to a state of excitement. There are cookies to tempt him in the bakeshop window. He sees a balloon or a pinwheel and he wants one. Or an ice-cream cone or a hot-dog.

To know how to deal understandingly with a child who annoys us to buy him things, we need to know something about the nature of a child's desire for things. By nature he is a collector, but being too young to be discriminating he sees beauty even in some drab piece of junk. It is the thing of the moment that counts with him. Something delights his eye, his ear or appeals to his palate, and naturally he wants it. As the philosopher says, beauty is desire.

A wise mother does not scold a child for wanting things. She comforts him first by agreeing. "Yes red balloons are nice. But what about your gorgeous painted ball at home? I like that too." Or, "The cookies do look good, but it is near dinnertime, dear." Thus if his choice is denied at least his taste isn't being derided. This enables him to see mother's point.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

Dangerous for Widow to Try Reforming a Man by Marriage When a Child Has to Be Considered

WOMEN who marry men to reform them usually get what they deserve. They should be observant enough to see that it is not the way reformations occur.

MRS. MARTIN

"Dear Mrs. Martin: Please help me decide what I should do about marrying a man who drinks, but who in every other way is a fine man. I am a widow with one little girl, age five, and I have to work for our living. I met this man about two years ago and he began being very attentive to me and I became engaged to him. I found that I could not marry him because he seems so unreliable on account of drink and I tried to forget him, but never did. He never stopped drinking, but I hear he does not drink as much as he did and he is at me all the time to marry him and promises that if I do he won't drink any more. He could support us nicely, and even when he is drunk he isn't unkind, but I do hate the idea of struggling all my life with a drinking man, for I don't suppose he'd stop, do you? Should I take a chance and marry him? I really want to. He is lovely to my little girl and she is fond of him.

—Mrs. Jack."

YOU would be taking a chance—and I think it would be a very grave chance. If you did not have to consider your little daughter you might try it and hope for the best, but with her future in mind I frankly think you have no right to marry this man.

If he does not stop drinking before you marry him he most certainly won't afterward. Your companionship might help a lot, but no woman can ever really "reform" a man. The reformation must come from within.

Men who have been hard drinkers have stopped drinking, but it is always because of something within themselves. They either stop because they are afraid of the consequence to their health, business, or some such thing, or they stop because they finally see the folly of their ways. They may stop temporarily for a woman, but having demonstrated to the woman that they can and have "stopped" drinking the chances are that they think they have done all that is necessary—and proceed to go on drinking.

You have a right to take a chance with your own future, but not with that of the child. If you had no first hand experience putting up with drunkenness you have little notion what you are sparing yourself by refusing this man. Husbands may be crimes, but I know of none that takes a bigger toll of the family happiness. Even when liquor does not make a man quarrelsome it makes a different man of him, and one that can never be depended on to do anything but complicate the situation.

DRUNKENNESS brings constant discomfort to a household, while embarrassment and humiliation trail in its wake. I have known more than one wife, who cared nothing for liquor, get to be as bad, and in some instances, worse, than their drunken husbands. If such should be your fate what would be your little girl? Give this man up and forget him as quickly as possible. See other men and encourage yourself to find an interest in them and in the many things there are to be interested in when one is young, has a child, a job, and the ability to enjoy life.

Don't throw yourself away on a man who is going to keep you in hot water all your life, not knowing where he is or when he is coming home — or how. Shield your little girl from any such misery as a drunken stepfather is bound to bring into her life.

Don't think that I am a narrow-minded teetotaler. I know that men and women in most walks of life drink a great deal, and that such being the case, there is always a possibility of something happening. But when one knows that a man drinks to excess and, what's more, seems to make no effort to control his appetite it seems pretty unintelligent to marry him.

He may be a perfectly charming person, and capable of supporting a family now. It is unwise to assume that such will always be the case. Excessive drinking coarsens one's sensibilities and appearance, runs into a great deal of time and money, and presents any number of problems.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Please tell me how I can go about getting our housemaid to look neater. It isn't that she does not keep herself clean, but apparently she thinks a good way to get use out of her old clothes is to wear them at work.—Mrs. M. B."

ANSWER: It is up to the mistress to provide uniforms. Three or four plainly styled dresses with as many aprons will be enough to start with if she is just the maid-of-all-work. And it is up to her to see that her uniforms are kept spic and span. If a houseworker also serves as waitress in the evening, she will want to tidy up before dinner and another costume to wear. Two dresses for serving, with little white aprons, should keep her well supplied.

Emmy Sonnemann Was Used to Attention, But That Glamorous Wedding Made Her Nervous

GLAMOR may be said to be rampant in Germany, and that is why a new figure in the limelight is being "hailed" these days by the Nazis. The beautiful Emmy Sonnemann, who became the bride of the resplendent Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, is the new object of adoration. Twenty-five thousand persons paid $8.35 apiece to see the wedding, millions held fetes all over the country in honor of their perfect Nazi frau, and the rest of the world planted her picture on the front pages of every newspaper. The Nazi darling had been somewhat used to applause, for she is a well-known actress, but the immensity and pomp of her five-star-extra wedding was almost too much even for a stage star. She was nervous.

EMMY SONNEMANN

Frau Goering is actually shy, although possessed of a well-poised manner and considerable culture. She is a native of Hamburg, from a well-to-do, but not politically distinguished family. She never entertained an idea of doing anything else but acting, for she early showed talent and her parents let her prepare with special tutors.

Like most troupers, she toured provincial theaters before joining the Weimar theater. She has reached her greatest success since the advent of the Nazis in such plays as "Schlageter" by Johnst and "Prinz Von Pruessen," her last before marrying into the government.

Adolf Hitler, as most of us have already read, was the little Cupid who shot the arrows at the glamorous pair. It happened when Hitler made Goering attend one of Emmy's appearances there. Goering, the big man, the stern skipper of statecraft, fell for her with a crash that could be, and was, heard all over the Reich.

After the actress began more and more to enjoy the favor of the impressive suitor, they suddenly decided it might be nice to marry—even as the couple holding hands across the table of a Berlin beer garden. So simply did Germany's most magnificent marriage in many years come about. Regardless of their political credo, most people seem to wish them marital happiness.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today

Cakes and Frostings Really Are Easy for Young to Make

By JUDITH WILSON

BOYS and girls, men and women like frosted cakes, and the thicker the frosting the better they like them. Yet how often do you serve cake for dessert? Usually cake is a company special or served only on Sundays when you are willing to go to a little extra trouble.

If you follow these modern recipes you can serve cakes as often as you wish, since they are no trouble at all—often the frosting being cooked on the cake as the latter bakes.

Chocolate Surprise Cakes

Cream together three-fourths cup sugar and two tablespoons butter, add an egg and beat vigorously. Sift together one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, three tablespoons cocoa, one-half teaspoon soda and one and one-half cups flour. Add to the creamed mixture alternately with one-half cup buttermilk to which one teaspoon vanilla has been added. Bake in muffin tins in a moderate oven. Cool, cut off the tops and scoop out the crumbs, fill with sweetened whipped cream replace the tops and spread with butter frosting:

Sift two cups confectioners' sugar with three tablespoons cocoa. Add four tablespoons melted butter and enough warm water or milk to make a frosting of spreading consistency.

If you prefer you can make this frosting and bake it directly on the little cakes. Beat an egg white until stiff then beat in one-half cup light brown sugar and two tablespoons cocoa. Add one-fourth cup chopped nut meats and spread over the cake batter in the pans. Bake the cakes in a moderate oven and when done, simply split and add the whipped cream.

Prune Filling

This is good for plain cakes. Bake the cake in a large flat pan, then cut into squares and put together in layers. For the filling, beat two eggs until very stiff and combine with three-fourths cup granulated sugar in the top of a double boiler. Add one-half cup sour cream, one cup cooked, chopped prunes and one teaspoon grated lemon rind. Cook for about twenty minutes or until very thick over hot water. Remove from the heat and add one teaspoon vanilla. Cool before spreading between the layers and on top of the cake.

Gelatin Frostings

The ready-flavored fruit gelatines make delicious never-fail frostings. Combine one tablespoon orange gelatine with two and one-half tablespoons orange juice in the top of a small double boiler. Dissolve over boiling water. Add one tablespoon melted butter, a pinch of salt, two cups confectioners' sugar, the grated rind of one-half orange and one and one egg yolk. Stir vigorously until soft and of the right consistency to pour. Drop small cake squares into the frosting, turning until all sides are covered. Remove with a fork and place on a rack to cool. Garnish with bits of candied fruit and nuts.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "When giving a first year wedding anniversary, what would be the best way to have it—formal or informal? If it is an informal affair would it be correct to wear an evening gown? —Mrs. F."

ANSWER: Evening clothes have no place at an informal function. A first wedding anniversary may be either formal or informal, but it will be decidedly more fun if you make this particular wedding anniversary informal, it being the "paper wedding." There is nothing very awesome about a paper wedding. A silver wedding, marking the twenty-fifth anniversary, on the other hand, should be attended by as much dignity and pomp as can be afforded. You could make your affair an indoor picnic, using paper plates, paper tableclothes and serving picnic fare. If the crowd is not too large and is composed mostly of young folk like yourselves, why not give each guest an apron to wear and entertain in the kitchen, with each doing his bit, slicing bread, setting the table, roasting frankfurters, dishing out the potato salad, making the coffee, toasting marshmallows. You won't have to worry over ways to entertain your friends, if you do this.

Short Cuts

The flavor of spinach is improved—or made palatable, if you happen to be one of those who does not care especially for spinach—by this simple expedient. Slice one small onion, wash and allow to steam for about five minutes in a covered pot. Now add the washed spinach leaves, and from this point cook as usual, for from eight to fifteen minutes in an open pot with almost no water.

If the soup is too salty, a few pieces of raw potatoes dropped into the pot during the last few minutes of cooking, will absorb a good deal of the excess salt.

Ground dates and nuts moistened with a little orange juice, is a delicious sandwich filling when served between thin slices of whole wheat buttered bread.

BOY ADMITS MURDER OF JUDGE, WIFE

AUSTIN, Tex., April 25—UP—Two years of insane brooding over fancied wrongs led Howard Pierson, 20, son of a Texas supreme court justice, to fatally shoot his parents on a hidden country road last night, Dr. Joe Wooten, family friend, said tonight.

Slaying of Associate Justice William Pierson and Mrs. Pierson turned Texas officialdom to mourning. The capitol flag was lowered to half mast. Governor James V. Allred and other state leaders paid their respects to the dead at the undertaking parlor.

Young Pierson refused to explain the shootings. Sheriff Lee O. Allen who obtained his confession after nine hours of questioning charged that the youth told a friend, several days ago, that he expected to kill his father and mother to collect his share of a $17,500 life insurance policy.

Wooten interviewed the youth in a jail cell today after murder charges were filed. Later he described the son of his former friend as a "typical dementia praecox case."

SCHEMED YEARS

"He told me he plotted and planned and schemed for two years to do away with his father and mother," Dr. Wooten said. "He has a marked inferiority complex. From the age of 11 he has dreamed of being, and sometimes in his own mind has pictured himself as a great scientist.

"He felt his parents opposed his desires. Two years ago he felt so upset that he attempted to commit suicide."

TRIED SUICIDE

Young Pierson was taken from a gas filled garage two years ago after he had closed the garage doors while an automobile engine was running. He narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation.

Dr. Wooten requested that Pierson be placed under observation in a hospital. County authorities said they would not take such a step.

In his confession early today the youth said that he invited his father and mother to accompany him on a drive to view an Indian grinding stone. Judge Pierson had worked late and welcomed the drive and Mrs. Pierson was interested in collecting such relics.

SHOT PARENTS

The youth drove the family car into a country road about 20 miles west of Austin. He stopped the car and told them the relic was at the side of the road.

As soon as his parents were out of the automobile, he produced a pistol which he had purchased several days before, according to his statement, and shot his mother. Before his 64 year old father could interfere, he turned the gun on him.

Young Pierson then took all their valuables and secreted them in a thicket not far from the scene of the shootings. He then shot himself superficially in the arm and threw the pistol into the thicket.

Threat Of Tong War Nipped By Fresno Officers

FRESNO, April 25—UP—Timely discovery by the police today of an alleged "frameup" by which a Chinese of one tong sought to send a member of another to jail in reprisal for his own conviction on narcotics charges was believed to have nipped a tong war threat.

All special police guards were withdrawn from the Oriental quarter as a peace pact was reported signed between the Suey Ons and the Bing Kongs, which had been in a tense dispute over the conviction on narcotics charges of Bob Lee, Suey On leader.

Ng Loon, Bing Yong whose testimony convicted Lee, confessed to a "frameup", Police Chief Frank Truax said. A new trial to acquit Lee will be sought.

Truax believed Ng's motive apparently was due to testimony against him by Wong Tam, Hanford Suey On. Ng has been ousted from his tong, which has agreed to pay Lee's trial expenses.

Seven Missing As Small Boat Goes On Rocks

JUNEAU, Alaska, April 25—UP—The seven-man crew of the motor towboat Virginia IV was missing tonight as the coast guard cutter Tallapoosa sped toward wreckage of the craft at entrance of Lizianski inlet.

The Tallapoosa will attempt to land a party through a heavy sea to search for possible survivors. Lizianski inlet is 18 miles from Seapstone Point in southeastern Alaska.

The crew of a gasboat out of Hoonah found the wreckage, in which an overturned skiff was entangled. High waves prevented the boat from landing.

The Virginia IV, 92 feet long and owned by the Juneau Motorboat company, passed Stagg Bay yesterday and apparently was wrecked last night.

Traffic Council To Establish School For Law Violators

known as 'traffic safety week' in Richmond.

Mayor George F. Imbach will issue a proclamation in connection with the event, and on Sunday, May 19th, the ministers will make the program a part of the services.

Starting Monday, May 20th and continuing until Friday, there will be special traffic programs put on by the service clubs, the fraternal organizations, the school department and the industries.

Dr. Boehmer, the president of the council said at the close of the meeting that he believed the great majority of drivers did not intend to violate the law, but did so in many instances unknowingly with the result that many accidents occurred. "Through education," said Dr. Boehmer, "we believe that many of the fatalities can be obviated, and the accidents can be greatly reduced. To accomplish these ends is the purpose of the safety week, and the establishment of the traffic school.

sors at the University of California an institution maintained with your money wired a protest against the measures. The resultant outcry forced them to offer a weak explanation to the effect that under one section of the bills they might be committing a crime by even carrying Communistic literature to their class rooms. Later the protest was said to have been against the throttling of free speech. Either explanation failed to explain to the satisfaction of the ordinary man. These learned gentlemen could have made known their specific objections instead of broadly condemning the proposed legislation in its entirety.

Now come 34 legislators and wire congratulations to the professors for their "stand for academic freedom" whatever that may mean.

If academic freedom means approval of the tenets of Communism I do not think very much of it; in fact it is the nadir of disgust.

IS IT WORTH IT?

Recall reverberations are ringing in the ears of Governor Merriam for having vetoed the train bill and the movement is being given aid and countenance by disgruntled elements in all the parties. Personally I do not think the movement will get any great distance, but it must be disturbing to the chief executive just the same. The more I see of the unpleasant features attached to the position and how few compensations there are in it the more I am amazed that men will make such efforts to occupy such a hot seat. If there be glory in it then that glory is but transitory and too great a price to pay for the bitterness, the envy, the malice the backbiting and the cruelties that seem to be inseparable concomitants of the job.

MOTHER OF YOUTH SEES KILLER FLEE

his voice. Subsequently, she heard three shots. Mrs. Wharton had been bedridden for two years and it was a short time before she was able to make her way into a hall connecting her apartment with Wharton's studio.

She saw a man, whom she said was a stranger to her, come into the hallway, run to the window in "an unusual gait" and leap to a patch of shrubbery below.

SEEK MAN

Mrs. Wharton said the voice she recognized as one of Wharton's male guests was that of "a man who used to drive around with him a good deal."

Police said they had identified the man and would hold him for questioning.

Mrs. Wharton said her son was staggering toward a telephone apparently in an effort to call for help when she entered the room. He collapsed before she could reach him and died a few minutes later. He was shot twice through the heart, police said.
